Please to register your letters containing remit-tances, as we hold ourselves responsible for all tosses to us when letters are registered. We are not re-sponsible for tosses in the mails, should they occur, unless letters are registered. The editor of the Journal is not pleased that the Hon. Garret Davis should go to Washington to remonstrate with the powers that be against the conduct of affairs in this State. Davis has been a bitter opponent of the Administration, and, therefore, not likely to be listened to. We don't suppose the Hon. Garret Davis went to Washington to ask favors, bul to state facts, which it is for statesmen to hear and act upon. We presume it is the business of the President to do justice; he is not asked for favors The Journal suggests that President John son will not attend to the representations of a Senator from Kentucky on a matter of interest to the Stale and the country, because the appeal is made by a political opponent. We were told several limes during the canvass that we had better send Abelitionists to Congress, for they would have influence with their party. and could do semething for the State; whereas, the Democrats would have none, and could obtain nothing. Kentucky is not a beggar, and has no favors to ask. She elects representatives to suit her, not to snit "more time regal power." She can afford to suffer these rascalities as long as her enemies can afford to practice them, If they do not choose to reform, it is all the worse for them, If the people of the United States prove fit for self-government. State if the people ever beg the Government to do right. We presume the Louisville Journal will advise the State to wait until the editor and his party ask the President to do instice, and make their representation of affairs, and obtain such favors as they desire at the expense of the Constitution and laws of this State. Of course they would never ask for justice; it is what they have most reason to fear; nor is it at all likely that instice will be meted out by the powers that be. Partisans never ce justice. We are imitating that sort of government we were once so averse to. We ere opposed to the arbitrary governnents, such as existed in Europe; and it was not our interest to allow antagonistic deas of government to set up on our borders. But as our institutions are assimilated to those of the old world, our objections have no foundation. A foreign Euperor is no particular objection. We have almost now as many foreigners as untives in the United States. We had better show the world first that we can maintain free institutions before we make months at the country, and especially adopted by political parties in the country, and especially of Congress from vas not our interest to allow antagonistic thers, and thus make ourselves a laughng stock for the rest of mankind. BRENNER.

The Union Democracy has changed ess, perhaps, than any other party since this war began. The same declarations hat were made in 1861 represent the feeling of the State now. In the General As sembly, soon after the invasion of the State by General Bishop Polk, the followng resolution was passed respecting citizens who entertalned secession views: zens who entertained secession views:

Resolved, That In using the means widen duty and honor require shall be used to expel the invaders from the soil of Kentucky, no citizen shall be molested on account of his political opinion—that no citizen's properly shall be taken or contiscated because of such opinions, nor shall any slave be set free by any military commander; and that all peaceable citizens who remain at home and attend to their private business, until legally called into the public service, as well as their families, are entitled to, and shall receive, the lies, are entitled to, and shall receive, the fullest protection of the Government in the Government of their lives, their liberties and their property.

Kentucky is now opposed to the molestation of any cilizen on account of his political opinions. She is opposed to the seizure of any citizen's property because of his opinions, and declares now, as then, that no slaves shall be set free by any military commander.

These principles are the ones upon which the recent Legislature was elected. They defeated the party that opposed them, and they meet at Frankfort only to sustain the views and policy adopted in 1861.

The public, by looking at the re-turns of the late election, will see that the friends of the amendment gained several members of the Legislature in the loyal parts of the State, and lost strength only in the notoriously dismion counties. This is an undeniable fact, and one of very creat significance. It unconvexally inreat significance. It intequivecally in-licates, what indeed would be sufficiently meanies, what indeed would be similarized without it, that the anti-amendment element in our State is the disloyal element, the rebel element. There isn't a rebel in the Stale that didn't vote and electioneer against he amendment. If only loyal citizens had voted, if only those had voted who had a moral right to vote, the amendment would have been carried fifteen or twenty to one.—[Journal (Thursday.)

Why, you pitiful humbug, didn't you say on Wednesday that you were in favor of the repeal of the expatriation law, by which all this "disloyal element, the seession element, the rebel element," is to be cutitled to vote and electioneer? Your plan of allowing only loyal citizens to vote would have carried if the Journal office had been judge of what loyalty is; and, from its course now, it promises to be soon a very select body, comprised in perhaps one, or, at most, two editors, of hat "only loyal paper in Kenlucky."

There is going to be a row over eross the street. The editors of the Journal don't submit their articles one to another, and as they turn out edilorials as striped as Jacob's sheep, such mixing of the breed will not do.

We expect to see our neighbor standing on that iron-railing balcony with his stippered foot just withdrawing two or three inches from some noble editor who has urgent and immediate basiness in the street in front of Muldoon's marble store The air will probably be perfumed with ome sulphurous "cuss-words" about What do you think of that for an expatriation law?" but that is a matter between the gentleman limiting a grave-stone at the marble store and the senior editor of

The papers of Friday announce that Si-Cameron, of Dauphin county, wa aded by his friends on the preceding venlug, ut the Girard House, in the city and availed himself of the occasion to vill fy my colleagues and myself, "the Co sinen of Philadelphia," in a speech t gressinen of Philadelphia," In a speech to the assemblage.

I was but a youth when I first heard the name of Simon Cameron, and it was as the perpetrator of a great crime. He had been made the agent of the Government to carry a large amount of money, due them, to the Winnebago Indians, and had taken advantage of their ignorance and helplessness to enrich himself. Those of you who had then attained to mannood, though you may not affer the large hood, though you may not, after the lapse of so many years, revive the burning in-dignation with which you regarded the infamous swindler of the poor Indians, will doubtless remember that instead of will doliniess relienter that instead of paying them do specie, which the Government confided to him for that purpose, he retained it and gave them the notes of the Middletone Bank, of which he was an owner. At their encumpment in the remote wilderness, these notes were utterly worthless. The Indians could not use them less. The Indians could not use them for any purpose there, nor carry them to Middletown for redemption. But what was that to Simon Camerou? Was not their loss his gain, and was he not so much the richer by every note that fuiled to come home for redemption, though they did suffer and starve? And those of yon who are not old enough to remember all this, now know why this bold, bad man is sometimes spoken of by your seniors as the "great Winnebago," and sometimes

"Old Kiekapon." For more than thirty years, I have watched the tortuous career of this man, and have never seen reason to abandon my first impression of his character, Whether acting with the Democratic, the Know-Nothing, or the Republican party, for he has in turn disgraced them all, he has never been false to his criminal instincts. He has endeavored to turn them all to profitable account. His ambition is sordid, and panders to his avarice, and he measures honors by the perquisites they expose to his grasp. He has no confidence in the people and is aware that they distrust him. His speech of Thursday evening was not characteristic of him, for he is prone to the use of instruments. His habit is to point the stilletto, but to em-ploy another hand to drive it bome. Though an active participant in the poli-tics of his country and State for more than half a century, during which long period he has pursued the profits of office, of jobs, of contracts, with eager and ceaseless assidof contracts, with eager and ceaseless assid-nity, he has never dared to permit his name to be presented to the people of country or State as a candidate for an elec-tive office. He crawls to the feet of the appointing power. He cares not who may be King, so that he may "still be Vicar of Bray;" and to that end be chaf-fers with, and corrupts, weak and needy members of conventions and the Legis-lature of both parties.

I need not recite the disgraceful facts

yet be vindicated.

The evil report of his deeds pervades the country as a reproach to our State. Yes, unhappily for Pennsylvonia and her great interests, the buzzard-winged fame of Simon Cameron is national. By months of abject solicitation and corrupt bargaining en time a member of Congress from Philadelphia would have had sufficient Philadelphia would have had sufficient influence to have carried his point (the establishment of a naval station at League Island) without a dissenting voice." Is that the assertion of a sober man? and did he who made it forget that our Congressmen in the olden time in proposing to locate a Government workshop at Philadelphia had not the terrible reputation of Simon Cameron, the Fagan of the Harrisburg lobby and Ex-Secretary of Wur, to contend with, and, therefore, had some chance for success? My colleagues and 1 were less happy than they in this rewere less happy than they in this re-

As I have said, he begged and bargained for the Influence which induced Mr.
Lincoln to invite him to a seat in his cabnet. It was now fondly hoped, by those who had not sounded the depths of his brevity of his term of office, and the cir-cumstances under which it closed.

unistances under which it closed.

In less than one year from the day on which Simon Cameron was installed as Secretary of War, Cougress, though at that early day it had before it but partial evidence of his criners, indignantly drove him from that high office. Two-thirds of the unembers of the lower House were friends of the Administration, and would gladly have sustained each member of it as they did its distinguished head.

You can luagine how painful it must have been to them to find themselves conhave been to them to find themselves constrained, by duty, to proclaim the fact that the first man the head of their party had been induced to appoint, as the successor of John B. Floyd, had exhibited greater aptitude than he for his worst tricks. But it became inevitable; for this old man, notwithstanding his boasted and reputed millions, believes that one of his name is never rich enough until he has a little more, and, to save their party and the country, the friends of the Administration in the House had to proclaim his infamy and denounce his crimes. ministration: In the House had to pro-claim his infamy and denounce his crimes. Nor was the vote by which they did it a meager one. His friends, and those who would most gladly have avert ed this, disgrace from our State, could rally but about one-third of the House against the resolution of condemnution. The vote was about two to one against him, though I, as a Pennsylvanian, not willing to bear witness against the Rep-resentative of our State, but too well aut-issied of his guilt to rote against the resoluresentative of our State, but too well antispied of his guilt to vote against the resolution, failed to record my vote.

In this fact, gentlemen, you have the secret of "this distinguished statesman's" hostility to me and my friends. Mr. Walborn, the Postmaster of Philadelphia, and other of his creatures, have offered me his friendship and support if I would endead to the property of the parather than the resolution expunged. frieudship and support if I would endea-vor to have that resolution expunged. My reply has invariably been that to stir foul matter would be to produce a stench. I have never in this or ought else endea-vored to propitiate him or his creatures. No stone may mark the spot where my poor remains may finally rest, but I mean that my children shall be able to vindicate my name by pointing to the fact that Simon Cameron and his confidential friends were ever hostile to me.

Boyd, who was arrested, was also a witness against them. It is ascertained that during his boys' imprisonment the old man frequently threatened that Boyd would be killed when they got home, and that on Tuesday morning, while proceeding to town he said they were going to kill him. Wesley first knocked Boyd down with a slung-shot, and as he arose to his feet old Brasier threw a rock which Broke Boyd's arm. Citizens interfered and prevented further injury.
